On that day of the event, the children departed to the Space Museum in the morning. They went to the exhibition hall on the ground floor to learn about China's space development.

During the visit to the exhibition hall on the ground floor, the children were able to learn about China's space development, the first Chinese astronaut, the name of Chinese rockets, China's space programme and the process of Chinese rockets lifting off from the sky.

This activity can enhance children's understanding of China's space development. There are also different games in the museum for children to learn about the process of China's rocket lift-off and space knowledge through hands-on exploration.
