Brief Descriptions:

At the beginning of the activity, the staff gathered the children to introduce the theme of the activity and each person's identity, sang the theme song together, and got to know each other. Then the staff divided the children into four groups according to their age to participate in themed activities. The children in N4 participated in the activity "Baby Sea Turtle Protection Action" (Care) on the same day. The children had to listen to the instructions and cooperate with their peers to transport the sea turtles to a safe place to show their love for animals. Children in the care group can understand the content of the story and understand how to save sea turtles. They can treat sea turtles gently and identify safe habitats for sea turtles to live in. During the activity, the children showed their unity and concentration, and acted cooperatively to protect the sea turtles. They also used observation and perseverance to persist in repeated attempts to find solutions to difficulties, and finally achieved success. Games can guide children to naturally display various positive character behaviors, and the level of play is appropriate. It also allows teachers to master and lead teaching activities to cultivate children's positive character and emotions, and have a better understanding of positive fruits.
