Through the story of “Mulan joins the army”, the children will experience Mulan's care for her father. Knowing that her father was at an old age, she took the initiative to join the army instead of him. Her filial piety was unreservedly shown. The activity will enable children to understand what Mulan felt and come to know the meaning behind joining the army instead of her father. After storytelling, teachers and children will discuss and share their ways to respect and love towards their fathers, such as offering tea, doing massage and delivering blessing words, etc. to appreciate their fathers' greatness and hardships.

In addition, children of higher grade will recite the ancient poem “In memory of father” which enables them to understand that the writer missed his father deeply. In the group games, children will take up the role of Mulan, which will let them to experience her bravery and her feelings of joining the army instead of her father.

One week before the celebratory activities, teachers had given each child a parent-child worksheet to record the ways they respected their fathers at home. On completion, they shared with their companions the ways they expressed love to their fathers at home.

Children of each grade had worked attentively to make a card stand as a gift to their father with the use of different materials. Each of them are very unique with personal style. Fathers felt heartwarming and appreciated the ideas of their children when receiving the card stand.

As can be seen, the activities has achieved the intended purpose, not only enabling the children to express effectively their love to fathers, but also promoting the relationship between them, thereby enhancing the parent-child relationship.
