Name of Activity

“Grateful For You” Activity of Thanksgiving Week

Objective(s)

- Children can learn to appreciate the hard work and contributions of their family and elders.
- Children can express gratitude and love to their family and elders.
- Children can learn about the traditional Chinese virtue of "filial piety," fostering an attitude of respect and care for their family and elders.

Brief Descriptions:

- Each class teacher and the children prepared a song about gratitude, which they performed for the parents. The children engaged in rhythmic movements to the music, using lyrics and actions to express their thanks and love for their parents and elders.
- Parents and children participated together in a musical game. When the music stopped, they collaborated to complete designated actions, such as hugging and kissing. This helped children understand the traditional Chinese virtue of "filial piety", fostering an attitude of respect and care for their family and elders.
- Children collaborated with their parents to create the nightlights as gifts, enjoying sweet and warm moments together. Afterwards, the children gave the gifts to their parents, learning to appreciate the hard work and contributions of their family and elders, which further nurtured their attitude of filial piety.
