Before the activity, the teacher uses stories to help the children understand the work of a farmer, and to know that farmers raise animals on the farm, leading to experiential activities related to farming. The teacher designs a series of experiential activities related to animal husbandry, and after each activity, the teacher shares and summarizes the discoveries made during the activities with the children each day. Simulated farmer activities include: squeezing cows' milk, shearing sheep, raising chickens, etc. And the children also learn to take care of other animals.
