To help young children understand the unique attractions of Hong Kong and the characteristics and habits of different marine animals, teachers guided the children into the venue for experiential activities. The Ocean Park arranged for instructors to take the children on a visit while explaining the various types of marine life. After this, the instructors led the children to watch a marine theater performance. Once the viewing activity was over, the teachers took the children to explore different areas of Ocean Park, such as the Panda House, the cable car and the aquarium, allowing them to better understand the park's facilities and its special attractions.
