Objective(s)

- (1) Help children learn to appreciate themselves and express gratitude for the dedication, care, and love of their parents and teachers.
- (2) Introduce the traditional Chinese virtues of gratitude, filial piety, and respect for teachers, while nurturing children's ability to express thankfulness.
- (3) (3) Enable children to learn about and appreciate traditional Chinese folk crafts through hands-on experiential activities.

Brief Descriptions:

This activity features a professional instructor who visits the school to introduce children to the materials, specialised tools, and modelling techniques used in traditional dough sculpture art. Following the demonstration, class teachers guide the children in an extended creative activity.

Using a mirror, children first observe their own facial features and appearance carefully, such as their hairstyle and whether they wear glasses. They then use colourful dough to create a unique graduation figurine that represents themselves. Through this process, children learn to appreciate their own efforts and celebrate their personal growth.

Finally, each child places the meaningful figurine inside a glass jar and decorates it with dried flowers. This beautifully crafted traditional handicraft, filled with gratitude and appreciation, is then presented to their parents as a heartfelt gift.
